

Level 4 Specific Examples

As sure as the thrill of opening a birthday present, living life as a cartoon character is an scintillating idea.

LEVEL _____ PROMISE

A cartoon is made up of a series of drawings which are brought to life by an animator.

LEVEL _____ DEFINITION

It is no surprise that there are negative aspects to being a cartoon character, such as wearing the same clothes every day and having four fingers, but these are eclipsed by many wonderous concepts.

LEVEL _____ HOOK/TRANSITION

begin with a bold statement (like a promise)

General Example -->

Cartoon characters can somehow defy the laws of physics. One example is on the show "The Powerpuff Girls". Even though they're only 2'6", they can manage to defy the laws of gravity and fly around te world. Another example is "The Bugs Bunny and Tweety Show". The Tasmanian Devil spins 100 times as minute and breaks a wall. If only humans could do that!

Ohhh, what I'd give to see a human do that!

Imagine _____

Consider what it it would be like if _____

Not only can cartoon characters defy the laws of physics, very day (or episode) thy have acky and exciting adventures. Proof of this is when Homer Simpson tries to climb the "unclimbable" mountain with nothing but oxygen tanks on the t.v. show "The Simpsons". Again, on "The Simpsons", Homer Simpson becomes an astronaut and flies off into space.

Imagine _____

Now there's something an average Joe doesn't do every day.

Consider the possibilities if _____

Think about _____

Last, but definitely not least, is when you're a cartoon character, your existence will last forever. Let's use everyone's favourite Wile E. Coyote as an example. During his desperate struggle to catch the roadrunner, Wile E. Coyote falls hundreds of feet off various cliffs. Now, any normal person would be, well, dead, but now you're a cartoon character, so you'll be flattened for 3 seconds and then you'll be up and walking up and walking again. More proof is when Wile E. Coyote gets a huge anvil dropped on his head. He sees little stars and that's it.

_____

_____

Once again, he is perfectly fine.

remind your reader why this is a good/bad thing

If it wasn't for no limits on freedom, having wacky adventures every day and never dying, living life as a cartoon character would be horrid.

LEVEL _____ REMINDER

=

_____